At a glance, one might expect that this picture was taken in a place in Indonesia. The people here performed sembahyang (a prayer) and wore a songkok on their heads and sarong. Although all terminology for their act of worship--including the ritual costume--is in Bahasa Indonesia (eg; sembahyang, songkok, sarong etc), these people were not in Indonesia or even Indonesian. They were Moluccan Muslims who were placed at Kamp Wydlermerck, the Netherlands from 1954 to 1969.
